BUTTE-SUPERIOR OUTPUT NORMAL

January's Production Probably Equal to December Figures

Butte, Mont., Feb. 12.—General Manager James Bruce of the Butte & Superior company has not yet returned from the east. Mr. Bruce left several weeks ago for the Joplin district and other points further east. He will, within a few days, probably return to Butte, at which time the exact figures of the mill's savings will be given out. January's zinc production of the Butte & Superior probably will equal the December output of 11,428,618 pounds of zinc in concentrates by reason of the prevailing high-grade character of the zinc ore entering the concentrator.

Although the percentage of recovery for December fell slightly under that for November, 88.2, as compared with 90.1, yet the ore concentrated carried a higher zinc content and the tonnage mined during December was about 1,000 tons in excess of the amount put through the concentrator during the preceding month. The November tonnage statement was 42,649 and the December 44,619. The concentrates averaged 68.5 per cent for November.

At the present rate of production the Butte & Superior will produce approximately 135,000,000 pounds of zinc which output, it is said, can be increased materially if the grade of zinc ore warrants. In addition to its zinc output the Butte & Superior is producing annually more silver and properties in the Comstock district, together with about 600 ounces of gold monthly.

Based on an average calculated from recoveries made during the last four months of 1913, the Butte & Superior's normal output of concentrates, in concentrates and residue from the zinc smelter, is more than 3,000,000 ounces of zinc, more than 8,250,000 pounds of lead and more than 8,000 ounces of gold.

REES ASKS IF FEDERATION IS TO BE INVESTIGATED

Heed the Dunnington house for the purpose of selling him a life insurance policy. He was asked if the mining companies sold life insurance. He replied Kings sold him the policy. To a question by Attorney Petermann if Kings made him take it he said: "He talked it into me, I was foolish enough to listen to him." He added that it was no use for the miners to keep a cost sheet, though nearly all of them kept an account of his expenses underground.

In a direct examination he remarked that he could not get a job at any of the mines under the C. & H. management. In the cross-examination he said that he tried at Allouez, but could not get a position. The question of the one man machine was again taken up by Attorney Petermann who, with some difficulty, brought the remark from the witness that it took him three minutes and forty-two seconds to rig up a drill in a contest in Calumet, and under ordinary conditions a machine could be rigged up underground at the beginning of each shift. He answered to make the place safe and to remove any hanging grounds. He reiterated the statement that only once in eight months did he get what he earned. It was brought out at this time that his conference with General Manager MacNaughton lasted about two hours. His examination continued.

Q—What is your average pay?
A—It was good until I got married. I believe it's a foolish thing to get married in the copper country.

Q—What was your average in the last two years?
A—I didn't average bad. I made a living.

Q—Can you give figures.
A—One time I got $52.
Q—Was that the lowest?
A—Yes.

Q—What was your highest?
A—One month I raised 18 feet. I got $196. I was working with the captain's brother-in-law. We didn't work much that month and he made that remark to me. I said all right, you're in the family. I'll stay with you.

Q—Who was that?
A—Captain Tom Crothers.
Q—How long have you been a member of the federation?
A—A year and a month before the strike.

At this point a reference was made to Dunnington's office as marshal of Allouez and of arrests leading up to his appointment, as well as the resignation of his predecessor and the forced resignation of Maurice Kemel as president of the village.

Dunnington described a raid that he said was made upon the village of Allouez by deputies. He stated that the deputies searched all the houses for arms. Although he was marshal he said his house was searched and he was knocked down and beaten by one of the deputies. Another of these deputies attempted to shoot him last December, he continued, and when he took the pistol away from him he was arrested for larceny.

"Did the marshal of Allouez ask the sheriff for deputies to help preserve order," asked Congressman Casey.
"No, I was marshal. We didn't need any deputies."

A. E. Petermann, attorney for the companies asked the witness if the man he said had tried to shoot him was not a non-union man whom he was trying to prevent from working. The witness answered, "No."

"What is it you men want," asked Chairman Taylor.

"Let the companies give us a minimum wage of $3 a day and eight hours a day and recognize our union and they will make more money than they have ever made," he replied.

Tramways who had formerly filled ten cars a day have been driven to fill as many as fifty-two in later years, he said. As to the miners the one man machine he declared was killing all of them.

Dunnington's answers at times were witty and evoked much laughter from the audience. At other times his replies were pertinent, which seemed to amuse the federation faction present.

Chairman Taylor had not decided at the close of the congressional investigation of the strike yesterday afternoon when the committee would move to Calumet to investigate the Italian fall disaster of Christmas eve.

Chairman Taylor is awaiting the convenience of the other members of the committee now here, and it may be that the trip to Calumet will be delayed till the absent members of the committee, Congressman Switzer and Hamilton, arrive.

Witnesses State Grievances.
Congressman Howell asked Waatt "Have conditions been growing better or worse in the past five years?"

"Worse. In every way and in every manner."
Chairman Taylor remarked "Let the witness tell us how things have been getting worse."

Waatt answered, "There is more work than a man can do and the pay is no different. A man cannot work in two places but now we are expected to assist men in setting up the one-man drill and leave our own work to do it. They always require more and more work. If a man is unable to do it they kick and we get treatment unfit for any man."

"Do you mean to say," asked Mr. Howell, "that there are no cordial relations between an old and faithful employee like you and the mining companies?"

"If a man dares to kick," answered the witness, "he is the man to be pushed."

Two Warramens of Wolverine, a trammer, followed Daniel Waatt on the stand yesterday afternoon. He said he had worked in at least half a dozen mines and never in one more than six months. He complained of conditions under which trammers worked. He also complained that he had been injured in the Tamarack and could not get his job back till he threatened Capt. Frank Landers with a suit against the company.

William E. Mitchell of Florida, 28 years of age, had worked in the mines since 14 years of age. His complaint was that he lost a job at the St. Louis because he stayed home on election day. Congressman Casey inquired if he was fired because of his having political differences with the captain. Mitchell admitted that was not so. Mitchell said the highest pay he had ever received was $123 in one month on the one-man drill. He said the lowest pay he ever received as a contract miner was $18 in one month.

Emil Salmi of Allouez offered the grievance that the trammer bosses used abusive language that he could not translate into Finnish, but that he could reproduce the English version after a fashion if the committee desired. He was not urged. He also complained that his partner, doing the same work, received $15 a month more than he did. On cross-examination he said he was rated as a helper and his partner as a miner.

The grievance of Eric Mitoni was that he had been discharged from the North Kearsarge because he demurred at donating to a subscription being raised to send a tubercular Cornish boy to the old country. He paid the subscription and said he was fired later.

Daniel Tuovinen of Raymbaultown complained of the working conditions when sinking shaft in No. 1 C. & H. 50 levels down. The place is wet and the air bad. Congressman Casey inquired what provisions were made to get injured men out of the bottom of a shaft that is in process of sinking and the witness could think of none. In connection with this testimony, Chairman Howell inquired about the state mine inspection law and Mr. Kerr suggested he had better read that statute into the record. This was agreed to, for the future, Congressman Casey wanted to know if there is a noon-hour law in Michigan and was advised there is not.

Chairman Taylor sought information on what the Federal Bureau of Mines had ever done for this section. To justify the big appropriations he had helped to get for it. Mr. Reese told of the visit of the instruction car and Mr. Petermann invited the committee to visit the Calumet & Hecla rescue station.

Mr. Casey wanted to know if there are any gas dust or wind explosions in these mines and Mr. Kerr promised to put on witnesses to give some facts regarding Quincy air blasts.

Olli Rantikka of Wolverine complained of low wages. He had once received a $12 pay day and the highest he admitted was $10.

El. Heimonen of Mohawk complained of receiving $14 for 14 days' work at the Mohawk. He said it was contract mining and that a contract is a risk just like a game of cards.

"Are the miners generally opposed to this contract system?" asked Congressman Howell.

"Your language is too high for me," said Heimonen, who was talking English.

Mr. Petermann put the question, "What do you men prefer, contract or company count?" and Heimonen declared for the latter very decidedly. He was the last witness for the day.

GET JURY IN GORE CASE.

$50,000 Damage Suit Against the Senator is Opened.

Oklahoma City, Feb. 12.—A jury was accepted yesterday to decide the $50,000 damage suit instituted by Mrs. Minnie E. Bond against United States Senator T. P. Gore, who charges that the Oklahoma senator attacked her while she was a guest at a Washington hotel. Before court adjourned for the day both sides had outlined their contentions.

Judge George W. Clark held that the past life of neither the plaintiff nor the defendant was vital to the case although testimony may be presented to establish the general reputation of either. It is stated that under this ruling a mass of depositions will be excluded.

Mrs. Minnie Bond, who is suing Gore described in a crowded court today the alleged attack on her in a Washington hotel. She said she had the senator come to her room to discuss the appointment of her husband to a federal position. During the interview she says Gore seized her hand and then threw her on the bed, her eye glasses being broken and her face cut in the struggle. At this juncture, T. E. Robertson of Oklahoma, and two friends entered the room and as she went to wash her face Gore told the men there was "nothing wrong."
